Description

The effectiveness of an organization or team rests upon the effectiveness of its leaders. Leaders and managers set the tone for the group. They are responsible for setting goals and carrying them out, and they add rewards, feedback and discipline.

In a time where hospitals are faced with a variety of financial pressures, a dynamic and changing work environment, increased regulation, and increasing span of control, the job of leaders and managers in hospitals is increasingly difficult.

Research has found that only five percent of leaders maintain the optimum mindsets for these challenging environments. In this session, Dr. Ryan Gottfredson will help leaders harness new strengths to enhance leadership across their organizations.

Course Objectives

At the end of this session, participants will be able to:

- State the power and importance of mindsets in leadership effectiveness
- Identify specific mindsets that drive leadership success
- Appraise the degree to which participants possess the mindsets necessary for leadership effectiveness
- Recognize ways to harness the power of mindsets and enhance organizational leadership

Who Should Attend?

Leaders at all levels of the health care organization.

Speaker

Ryan Gottfredson, PhD, is a leadership consultant, trainer, coach and researcher. He is a leadership and management professor at the Mihaylo College of Business and Economics at Cal State Fullerton. He holds a PhD in organizational behavior and human resources from Indiana University, and a bachelor's degree from Brigham Young University. Gottfredson is also a former Gallup, Inc. consultant — where he helped dozens of organizations improve employee engagement.

Gottfredson has published multiple articles on effective management in Journal of Management, Journal of Organizational Behavior, Business Horizons, Journal of Leadership and Organizational Studies. His research has been cited more than 1,500 times since 2013.
