Session Description

Few of us have the time or resources to regularly assess the trends and efficiency of organized labor year over year. As a result, we often miss opportunities to capitalize on relevant information and new developments. Most importantly, we're witnessing the transformation of our national labor relations law. The final chapter of this discussion has yet to be written.

Hear from labor and employment experts about recent labor union trends in the U.S. and California health care markets.

Following this course, participants will:

- Gain knowledge of organized labor activities in the U.S. and California health care industries.
- Be able to identify top labor union organizations in health care.
- Understand how recent National Labor Relations Board case law changes impact employers.

Who Should Attend?

This program is intended for:

- Chief human resource officers and executives
- Chief nursing officers
- Chief operating officers
- Labor relations professionals

FACULTY

Douglas R. Hart Morgan, Lewis & Bockius LLP

A leading class action litigator, he handles nationwide class action litigation and has served as national class action counsel for several Fortune 100 companies. Hart has been highly successful in defending some of the largest class action lawsuits filed against employers both in California and elsewhere, with several of the cases being dismissed outright. He handles all types of employment-related class action lawsuits on behalf of employers, including pay practice and wage hour cases, disparate impact and intentional discrimination cases, and pension plan cases.

John K. Henderson IRI Consultants

John K. Henderson is a labor and employment lawyer who focuses on positive employee relations and helps employers comply with laws and regulations in an increasingly complicated landscape. In his 27-year career, he has handled more than 250 union organization campaigns, in excess of 100 National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) proceedings, and more than 100 employment law administrative hearings. A graduate of the University of Colorado School of Law, Henderson spent more than nine years advising and representing employers as associate in-house counsel for Mountain States Employers Council, an association of over 2,400 employers in the Rocky Mountain region. He then spent more than five years as an in-house human resources leader for a medium-sized Denver-based company and as vice president of human resources for American Medical Response.
